CITY ITEMS

In the Common Pleas Court, yesterday, a decree of divorce was granted to Johanna L. Johnson, for reasons satisfactory to the Court.

The Supreme Court adjourned on Tuesday. There will be no business made until the commencement of the Fall term, on the fourth Monday in November.

The work of building the First Presbyterian Church, on the corner of New York and Pennsylvania streets, is progressing rapidly—the lecture room will be ready for the roof in a few weeks.

Another mad dog was killed near the rolling mill yesterday. A good deal of excitement was created in the neighborhood on its appearance. It is reported that he bit a horse and a cow.

Wiley & Martin have laid on their table a new edition of their Map of Indianapolis, containing all the late additions to the city, the line of streets, and all other matters of interest. It is gotten up in fine style, and should be in the office of every business man.

The extra train for the State Fair started from this city yesterday morning with less than a carload of passengers. This looks as if the attendance at the Fair from central and southern Indiana would be very small. We are disappointed in this, as we expected the attendance would be very large.

We understand the temperance men have determined not to file bonds in the case of appeal against the granting of liquor licenses, now before the Auditor. In that event the licenses should be issued by the Auditor when the fifteen days of limitation, fixed by the Commissioners expire.

Brick-masons and plasterers have been partially stopped this week for want of lime. The supply has been limited during the whole season, and for several days it has run nearly out. This point of lime occurs every season. Why don't the master brick-makers anticipate and burn their own lime, if they can't get a full supply from other sources?

The Indianapolis Cricket Club will play a match game to-morrow afternoon, (Friday) upon the grounds of the Base Ball Club, on California street, near Vermont. The wickets will be pitched at 2 o'clock. It will be a fine opportunity to witness this interesting, and, mainly sport. The Club numbers several good cricketers who learned this game in the old country, where almost every village has either one or more clubs.

Two trains—A train of two hundred and fifty six mule Government wagons, six mule-drawn ambulances, and two ambulances, on their way from Washington City to Leavenworth, Kansas, passed through this city yesterday. They were under the charge of Captain M. H. Mendelville. The teams look in good condition, and had an easy time pulling empty wagons. They were driven by the drivers. Following the train were ten wagons, loaded with hay for forage.

The Hero's Own Story—General Sherman's official account of the great march through Georgia and the Carolinas, from the departure from Chattanooga to the surrender of General Johnston, and the Confederate forces under his command; to which is added General Sherman's Evidence before the Congressional Committee, on the Conduct of the War, the anti-repugnance of Secretary Stanton and General Halleck, with a defense of his proceedings, &c. For sale by Bowen, Stewart & Co. This is a reliable history of this interesting march, and should be generally read.

Circuit Court—Yesterday, in the Circuit Court, Bridget Barry was tried for grand larceny, and not being found guilty was discharged. Lewis Brown was tried for grand larceny, in stealing meat from the Soldiers' Home, found guilty, and sentenced to two years in the penitentiary.

William Wilber was on trial yesterday afternoon for grand larceny, in stealing money from a soldier. The case was being argued when we were in Court, and would probably be submitted to the jury last night.

Post-Office Robbery—Henry S. Nourse, a stamping clerk in the post-office, was arrested yesterday on a charge of having purloined letters containing valuables. He says he only took about thirty letters, the most of which he returned. Some forgeries were found. He says he got about twenty dollars in money. Some of the letters contained drafts, which he said he sent on, as he could not use the drafts. He earned an excellent salary, and was told to bail in the sum of $1,000 for his appearance before the United States Court. A valuable letter was found on his person at the time of his arrest.

The first wedding ceremony, after three weeks, occurred in the cellar of Jerry O'Connor's saloon, on West Washington street, nearly opposite the Western Engine House. There had been a difficulty in the saloon during the evening, which the proprietor suppressed, and it is his opinion that some of the parties engaged in it set fire to some lumber in the cellar. The cellar was almost airtight, which kept the fire from spreading, otherwise the building, a large double frame, must have been consumed. It is estimated that $3,000 worth of liquor in the cellar, and so intense was the heat that nearly all of the barrels burst and the contents burned; and what adds gravity to the affair, the gas pipe was either broken or burned off, so that connection with the meter, yet with the combustible materials of spirits and gas, no damage was done except to the contents of the cellar and charring the joists. If there had not been a fire in the cellar, nothing could have prevented the complete destruction of the building. Mr. O'Connor was insured for $1,950, in the Home Mutual Insurance Company, of this city, $1,650 of which was on the stock in the cellar.

Public Improvements—The following permits for improvements were granted by the Board of Public Improvements at their session yesterday:

Levi W. Joseph, a frame dwelling on Tennessee street, between Vermont and Michigan—$600.

Ruth Norton, a frame dwelling on Missouri street, near McCarthy—$300.

Robert W. Kimball, a frame dwelling on Meridian street, between Walnut and St. Clair—$2,700.

Paul Kieley, a frame dwelling on Winston street—$1,000.

E. Athick Smith, a frame dwelling on Buchanan street—$900.

Maurice Ferrier, a frame dwelling on South Tennessee street—$1,100.

Police Matters

Yesterday we gathered the following items at the Police Court:

Harry Crutcher, for keeping a house of ill fame, fined $20 to the school fund and $70 to the officers of the Court.

Belle Russell, for being in a "bad house" paid $14.70.

And A. W. McCarthy, for assaulting and battering William Porter, paid $10.00.

Timothy Sullivan battered and assaulted Ann Sullivan, and not paying the $20.00 required to pay his fine, was sent to the chain-gang.

John Grace paid $9.40 for being drunk, and Anderson Kline and James Kelly were each fined for the same offence.

The Wholesale Grocery Trade—Groceries MAGNARE & Co.—The wholesale grocery trade in Indianapolis is much heavier than the casual observer would suppose. Those unacquainted with the establishment cannot form a just idea of the extent of the stock of Messrs. Groceries, Maguire & Co. Even an examination of the contents of the first floor of their store-room, on the corner of Madison and Maryland streets, would seem to prove that they have a large stock of all the necessities of life, and they are all filled with articles in their line. They have one cellar for brown sugar, another for molasses and syrups, and another for liquors. In the upper part of the building are barrels of coffee, tea, tobacco, and the numerous articles which are included in the trade; and we may add that the stock in all is complete. But how is the business done? In the West, it is done on a large scale. When it is known that eleven barrels are constantly engaged in receiving, packing, and shipping goods, some idea of the extent of the trade of this house can be realized, although everything is done so quietly, smoothly and systematically, as to attract but little attention. The sales of this house will probably reach $500,000 this year, and a business of that character requires no small amount of labor, sagacity and capital, to successfully conduct it, and we are sure that the establishment is not deficient in either of these requisites of success.

The gentles on comparing the firm up all experienced merchants and through business men, through the many years engaged in the establishment of trade, the Dry Goods, Mr. Groceries, Maguire & Co. is a business man of central Indiana, as one of our most enterprising, sagacious and successful merchants, he has never done anything without doing it well. Mr. Groceries, Maguire is a thorough grocery man, and his long experience in the trade and admirable business qualities, place him among the merchants of Indianapolis. Messrs. O'Hara and W. J. Groceries are included in the generic term of Co., and although their names do not appear, yet they are known to the customers of the House as its only accommodating gentlemen, but as it is not the business of the firm to advertise, we will not say more.

The firm of Groceries, Maguire & Co. has just received an addition in the person of Mr. John M. Caldwell, lately of the house of E. B. Alvord & Co. Mr. Caldwell has been connected with the firm of Groceries, Maguire & Co. for several years, and his influence has contributed largely to its success. His great qualities, his sterling integrity and his honorable dealing have attracted to him a host of friends, who feel a personal interest in his welfare and prosperity. As a salesman, Mr. Caldwell has no superior, and the customers of the firm with him is now connected with him the same honorable and obliging gentleman that has marked his business career in our city.

Under the new constitution, the property of the house will not only be continued, but doubtless largely increased and there is room for the enterprise of all. As the facilities for purchasing are increased, the business of our city will grow, and we have this optimism upon the experience of the past three years. Where there was one wholesale house then, there are a half a dozen now, and the business has fully kept pace with this rapid increase.
